Statement of the conference

“Towards Making Human Teacher” NCFTE (2009)”

Creating quality learning experiences and opportunities have been the main focus of the efforts of the international organisations involved in improving quality of education. Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) launched the Innovative Learning Environments project to turn an academic lens on the project of identifying concrete traits that mark innovative learning environments. . Structured, collaborative group work can be good for all learners; it pushes people in different ways. Learning culture needs to encourage innovative experimentation. Learners learn best when they feel part of the community to which they can actively contribute. The learning environment can become vibrant, exciting, creative and skillful in a teaching learning atmosphere that is founded on innovation. The 21st century has witnessed many innovative learning strategies such as prenatal learning (womb), Machine learning, Social-emotional learning, Virtual learning, Learning through Shadow education etc. The present world is changing at very fast rate. In order to cope with the speed of change, learning strategies need to be innovative.

Sub-themes:

Innovations in learning strategies	Self-directed learning	Personal learning environment
Machine learning	Learning to know	Learning to do
Cooperative learning	Project base learning	Learning to be
Lear to live together	Transformative learning	Adaptive learning
Deep learning	Informal learning
Equal opportunity in education for promoting quality in learning	Virtual learning
Lifelong learning	Prenatal learning (womb)
Learning at home	Learning through Shadow Education
Social emotional learning	Learning sciences	Assessment for learning
Contextualized learning(Multicultural & Culture Specific)
